

Bora da

Bora da was once a loving name used by the McCaskey family for this (once 1000 acre) historic estate, loosely translated it is a Welch saying that means “beautiful dawn.” In this suite, two large windows overlook the great pond and the majestic ancient willows surrounding it. The view, combined with the toile décor in this room, offers plenty of ambience. The black and white theme of the suite is carried throughout in dark black cherry furnishings, oriental carpet and twin upholstered chairs at the foot of the luxurious King four-poster bed. The bathroom in the Bora da Suite is the largest in the mansion, offering both an individual shower and a rare antique brass and enamel pedestal tub, perfect for that relaxing bath after a day of cycling, hiking or touring the Rogue Valley.
